

Education is a right, not a privilege.

Dear Parents and Educators,

The pandemic and the shift to online learning has brought about challenges for educators, parents, and students. One major challenge that teachers face in the digital classroom is the establishment of a caring community in the digital classroom. Whether classes are online or delivered face to face, one thing is for certain: the need to connect and to care for students is crucial in socio-emotional learning. One challenge parents face, on the other hand, is engaging in open dialogue with their children. "How can I connect and communicate with my children in a positive way?" is a common question raised by parents who are concerned about the wellbeing of their children. Acknowledging the need of parents and educators, our organization, the Educational Foundation, Inc., together with the Junior College Program of the University of Asia and the Pacific and Catalyst for Professional Development Services, is inviting you, your school community and your family to participate in a timely and relevant conference to help parents and teachers foster character development in school and at home.

We bring to you this online international conference entitled, "Life's Greatest Lessons: Forging Character in School and at Home" with Dr. Hal Urban, author of the book "Life's Greatest Lessons," as our speaker. The event will be livestreamed on March 11 (Friday) and March 12 (Saturday), 2022, 10:00 am to 12:00 nn in an exclusive Facebook group. The conference will feature two powerful talks on character education, with each session followed by an extensive live Q&A session:
